Primary Care Cardiology Upskilling Programme

Accession is coordinating the delivery of a one day GP up-skilling program in cardiology on behalf of Bristol-Myers Squibb (BMS) and Pfizer. The BMS-Pfizer Alliance is committed to supporting best practice and enhancing patient care within the NHS.

As part of this commitment, this non-promotional training program aims to up-skill GPs so they can optimise the management of patients with cardiovascular disease in primary care. The potential benefits include improving the detection of heart failure and atrial fibrillation, as well as reducing stroke rates and hospital admissions.

The program will be open to applications from all CCGs within England.

Non-promotional training; The BMS-Pfizer Alliance is committed to supporting best practice and enhancing patient care within the NHS.

AGENDA

The Diagnosis and Management of:

- Atrial Fibrillation
- Heart Failure

Interpretation of cardiac diagnostics in primary care:

- Making sense of an ECG
- Deciphering an echo report

This training course has already been delivered successfully by Dr Yassir Javaid to over 20 CCGs.

Testimonials

One of the most relevant, useful clearly presented presentations I have ever attended

GP from South Lincolnshire

Yassir's style is relaxed and immediately puts the audience at ease. His enthusiasm for the subject is infectious, he is able to translate technically difficult subjects into a language that GPs can understand, and he instills confidence to tackle patients' problems in a systematic manner
